Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Threefold Cord: Being Sketches of Three Treatises of the Talmud, Sanhedrin, Baba Metsa, and Baba Bathra, With an Appendix Containing a Lecture on the Eight Chapters of Maimonides It might almost as well be suggested that the whole of English literature should be rendered into German, French, or any other language. It should also be remembered that it is much easier to translate from a living tongue to another. Still, as it would be idle to assert that the entire English literature could be rendered into any other language, because such a task could not be executed with fidelity; so the whole of the Talmud, that ocean of literature, could not be rendered into English in such a manner as to be intelligible to the general public. There is, further, this obvious reason that no translation in its bare simplicity could faithfully reproduce the genius of the original. It would require scores of volumes of commentaries to supplement the translation, in order to reproduce fully and clearly the ideas, trains of thought, and logical arguments so idiomatically and tersely expressed in the Talmud.
