Two hundred years ago this Province was first settled by William Penn. Of the latter event we have lately heard much, of the former but little; and yet the latter was so much the natural sequence of the former, that the history of the one is incomplete without the history of the other. I propose, therefore, this evening to speak of three men, each of whom was prominent in the early history of the Society of Friends, and each of whom had somewhat to do with the settlement of Pennsylvania and its vicinity. I allude to George Fox, Robert Barclay and William Penn. I am well aware that to some who are present this account will have for them all the familiarity of a thrice-told tale. I cannot but believe that to others, and especially to the younger members of this Institute, there will be some facts mentioned which are new to them, and I am strong in the conviction that it will do no harm to any of us often to be reminded what manner of men they were to whom as Friends, and as Pennsylvanians, we owe so much. George Fox was born in Leicestershire, England, in the month called July, 1624. He had a good ancestry, for his father was a man whose honesty was proverbial, and his mother was of the stock of the martyrs. His school education was but moderate,...
