Excerpt: . . . 23646. If that resolution had not been passed in that Lutheran Synod, do you think prohibition would have been made part of the Republican Party platform--I think so; the prohibitionists of course never gave up. 23656. How did the German vote go 1--I could not say, although I know the Germans are very largely opposed to prohibition. A good many of the Swedes voted for prohibition. The great argument used was that there was more liquor drunk under prohibition than under high license. Men eased their consciences in that way. But the fact is that, the dollar hurt our business, and there was intimidation. 23666. Do you think the amount of revenue they got for school purposes influenced many--I do not think so. That argument was used, that the taxes were too heavy to keep up the schools; but I do not think that made much difference. It was that men were afraid that their business would be hurt in some way. A banker said to me at the time of the Blaine and Cleveland election eight years ago, I am just as good a prohibitionist as you are, let the question be a constitutional amendment separate from politics; but I am going to vote for Blaine on business principles. Another man, a banker, said to me, Dont you think prohibition would increase the number of places where liquor is sold 1 I said, So far as I am concerned, I would rather...
